"Having our wedding at Shuttleworth was an absolute dream come true. We fell in love with the venue as soon as we had our first viewing. We had the most magical wedding day, everything ran like clockwork and that was all down to the organisation of Georgia. We cannot thank her enough for making our special day the best day of our lives."

Swiss Cottage Ceremony

The Swiss Cottage

The Swiss Garden

The Shuttleworth Swiss Garden was created between 1824 and 1832. The garden is a rare survivor of a Regency garden in the 'Swiss Picturesque' style. It was first opened to the public in 1982 and has often been described as a hidden gem.

The Swiss Cottage is suitable for ceremonies of up to 20 inside and a further 50 standing on the lawn. The Grotto & Fernery is licenced for up to 17 people.

The Swiss Garden has a romantic, intimate feel. It is thought that Colonel Frank Shuttleworth and his young bride Dorothy spent a great deal of time here during their courtship. Peacocks, ducks and other wildlife are resident in the garden throughout the year, along with a range of interesting trees and plants.

Following the ceremony, guests can then make their way to The East Lawn for a drinks and canapé reception with our weddings gazebo and pod bar. During this time you can also capture your wedding photos and enjoy the surroundings with your guests.

"We had the most amazing day; The Swiss Garden is a jewel of a venue. We even had a guest appearance by the Peacocks which was enjoyed by all our guests. I felt like a princess in a fairytale, we didn't want it to end, we will recommend The Swiss Gardens to all our friends."

History of the Shuttleworths

Joseph Shuttleworth, co-owner of the world-renowned engineering firm 'Clayton and Shuttleworth', purchased the Old Warden Estate in 1872 and continued developing the Old Warden village in the Swiss style, which was started by Lord Ongley in the 1820s.

Henry Clutton, a highly influential architect of the Victorian era, was commissioned to design The House you see today. It became the family home for Joseph Shuttleworth, his wife Caroline Jane Ellison and Joseph's younger son, Frank. Father and son spent many happy years buying fine paintings and furnishings for the property. Frank and Joseph hosted shooting parties and Shuttleworth became known for its pheasant and partridge shoots.

Frank was a Major in the 7th Queen's Own Hussars and became known as 'Colonel Frank' when he raised the Bedfordshire Imperial Yeomanry in 1901. Not long after this, Colonel Frank married Dorothy Clotilda Lang, the daughter of the Old Warden vicar. It was deemed a happy marriage and they had a son, Richard. In 1913 Colonel Frank sadly passed away when Richard was just four years old. Dorothy bravely took over the running of the estate.

Richard grew up enjoying the estate and the village, and developed a keen interest in all aspects of engineering. In 1932 he inherited the estate and that of his Uncle, which allowed him to follow his twin passions of motor racing and aviation. During this time he purchased many fine cars and aircraft, which now make up The Shuttleworth Collection. He enjoyed a successful career as a racing driver but after a serious accident in South Africa he was persuaded to withdraw from motor sport.

After recuperating, Richard focussed on aviation. He was particularly interested in historic flying machines and would track down abandoned aeroplanes, then restore them to pristine condition in what is now the Engineering Workshop at Shuttleworth.

During WWII, Richard enrolled as a Pilot Officer in the RAF Voluntary Reserve, and was involved in training exercises from RAF Benson in Oxfordshire. On 2nd August 1940, shortly after take-off during a night flying exercise, he was tragically killed. At this time Shuttleworth was being used as a Red Cross convalescent home and hospital.

Colonel Frank and Dorothy's Wedding

Richard's mother Dorothy once again took over the running of the estate. Several years later she reimagined the estate as Shuttleworth College and set up a charitable trust in memory of her son. The mission of the Trust; 'for the teaching of the science and practice of aviation and of afforestation and agriculture', to follow in Richard's passions. The Shuttleworth College opened to students in 1946.

Today the College, now operated by Bedford College, as well as Shuttleworth House, Shuttleworth Swiss Garden and The Collection are run to honour Dorothy Shuttleworth's vision and to operate under the mission of The Richard Ormonde Shuttleworth Remembrance Trust.

"Shuttleworth House, situated within the historic Old Warden Park was a much loved home to my grandmother Dorothy Clotilda Shuttleworth and the family, which she then endowed as a charitable trust in memory of her son Richard, a renowned racing driver, who was sadly killed in 1940. The House remained as a centre for family and friends during her long lifetime. I have very happy memories from my early childhood on, and loved being there and I am very attached to the house and its beautiful surroundings which do make such a wonderful setting for family occasions.

As patron of the Shuttleworth Trust I would like to wish all those holding their marriage ceremonies here much happiness and blessings in their lives."
